

HPV

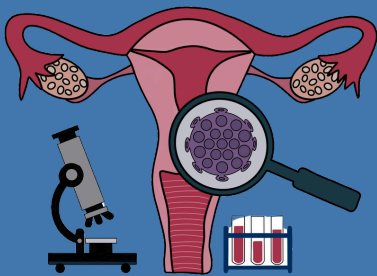

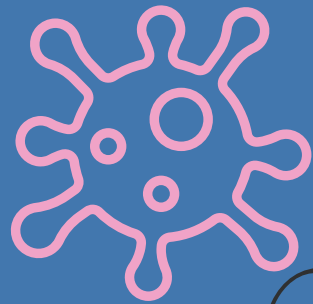

‘Human Papillomavirus’

What is HPV?

HPV is the name of a group of viruses

Most types of HPV have no symptoms and are harmless. They will go away on their own

You can get HPV through any form of sex or sexual activity.

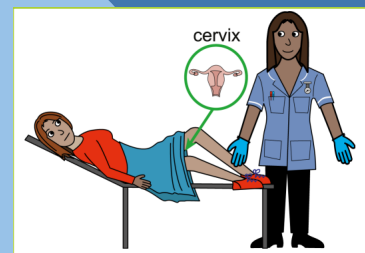

Some types of HPV can cause changes to your cells that can lead to cervical cancer

99.8% of cases of cervical cancer are caused by HPV

80% of people who have sex will have HPV at some point in their lives

The only way to test for HPV is with cervical screening

Leeds and York Partnership
NHS Foundation Trust

