

Cervical Cancer Prevention Week

How can you reduce the risk of cervical cancer?

Screening

Attending your cervical screening test is the best way to prevent cervical cancer.

Screening can find changes to cells before they turn into cancer so they can be treated.

HPV Vaccine

Having your HPV vaccine can help to protect you against HPV in the future.

This can stop you from having cervical cancer.

Smoking

Smoking increases your risk of cervical cancer.

Smoking can make it harder for your body to get rid of HPV. Stopping smoking will help reduce your risk.
